Hoodoo Hand Wireless Microphone System HH1L

The world's first value-oriented wireless system designed specifically for harmonica!

- patented "hoodoo ring" mic clip allows for perfect mic placement and freedom of hand motion!
- High-Quality micro-lavalier microphone designed specifically for harmonica!
- UHF Dual-diversity receiver
- Front-mount volume control

For 150 years, Hohner's diatonic harmonicas set the industry standard through high quality construction, excellent response and unsurpassed tone. Often called Blues Harps, they remain a fixture in blues, rock, country, folk, and many other styles of music. Traditional Richter tuning and undivided air channels allow for techniques such as bending and overblowing reeds, creating the signature wailing sound typical of the harmonica.

Chromatic

Chromatic harmonicas are designed to play every complete scale in any key – major, minor, pentatonic, blues, etc. – all on one instrument. Additionally, all accidental notes are available at any time for any situation.

Each single hole contains four notes, engaged individually by inhaling and exhaling in combination with pressing and releasing a button on the right side of the instrument. This system allows for complete chromatic playing, using all the notes of the western scale. Most chromatic harmonicas are also solo tuned, meaning each group of four holes covers a complete octave.

This design offers limitless expression to the player. Most often found in classical and jazz music, chromatic harmonicas are becoming increasingly popular in blues, rock and pop situations as well.

Hohner's tremolo harmonicas are double reed instruments. The bottom row of holes features the same notes as the top row, tuned slightly higher. This special tuning creates the tremolo's distinct sound, a beautiful vibrato effect with a richer tone. These harmonicas are primarily used in ballads, folk, reggae & gospel music.

Hohner Harmonicas Now In Blister Packaging!

Octave & Orchestral

Octave Harmonicas

Similar to its sister harmonica, the tremolo, octave harmonicas are also double reed instruments. The bottom row of holes features the same notes as the top row, with reeds tuned exactly one octave apart. This enables a solo player to get a stronger, richer bodied sound than with a single reed harmonica. Octave models are popular in Cajun, Old Time, Celtic and Traditional music.
